Special Issue: 'Fashion and Culture in East Asia: Sociocultural Identities'

This Special Issue will focus on issues of East Asian sociocultural identity. Fashion, Style & Popular Culture has published on topics relating to fashion and style, however, through this lens we hope to unpack issues surrounding different facets of identity such as gender, the body, sexual orientation, class and race. We are aiming to specifically address identities that are less represented in East Asian cultures at large, not merely just in fashion. The power of fashion and beauty comes from its ability to act as a lens through which we can understand complex societal issues, and this is what we hope to highlight. Essays, exhibition reviews and book reviews are welcomed. Possible topics can include, but are not limited to:

- Authoritarianism, political protest and fashion
- Beauty, popular culture and East Asian identities
- Postcolonialism within an East Asian context
- Historical understandings of fashion and dress in Japanese-colonized Korea and Taiwan
- Fashion subcultures in East Asia
- The relationship between fashion and class in an East Asian context
- Intersections between gender and dress in East Asia
- Fashioning the fat body in an East Asian context
- Considerations of queer/transgender identities and fashion in East Asia
